Report on a study concluding that up to a million people in the UK may have faced harassment, discrimination or bullying in the workplace because of their religion or belief. The findings, from the ComRes Faith Research Centre, suggest that workers who would never mock a colleague's gender or race still it is seen as acceptable to target their faith, the article says. <http://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/2017/04/02/religion-now-but-workplace-humour-sexist-jokes-have-become/>
